UNCC Doctor, Friend Die In

By KEN ALLEN

Observer Staff Writer

Dr. William A. Davis Jr., the director of student health services at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte (UNCC), was one of two people killed in the crash of a single-engine plane three miles south of Greenville S.C. Sunday.

The other victim was identified by authorities as Joanne Hope Crowsey, 44, a friend of Davis's from Charlotte.

The two were flying in a two-seater Cessna that crashed about 2:30 p.m. moments after it took off from a private airfield on Ice Shoals Dam [illegible]

Robert Moore, who lived near the airstrip, said Mrs. Crowsey's three children — Peggy [illegible] watched the plane take off [illegible] were visiting [illegible] grandparents nearby, took the suggestion the [illegible] and disappeared [illegible] and then a crash was heard [illegible] Sheriff M. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) said Davis was the owner of the plane and that he was piloting it when it crashed. No flight plan had been filed, but neighbors said the two were headed back to Charlotte when the crash occurred. The cause of the crash was not known and the FAA planned to begin an investigation today.

In addition to running the student health service, Davis was team physician for the UNCC Forty-Niners basketball team and other university sports, and an amateur pilot.

Davis joined UNCC in 1972 and oversaw a health center that included an 18-bed infirmary and a staff of 13.

He was a graduate of Davidson College and Duke University Medical School. He did his internship and residency at Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

Until joining UNCC, Davis was a general practitioner in Cornelius in Mecklenburg County and worked part-time [illegible] College during th[illegible] as an intervie[illegible] UNCC student he[illegible] ...tice practice [illegible] death at an earlier [illegible]
